DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

The IDS documents have been reviewed and made of record.

Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

As far as the claims recite positive limitations, the following rejections are made.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

Art Unit: 2627

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

1. Claims 1-3,6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Satoh et al.

Satoh et al discloses a reproduction device for performing a signal processing capability predicated upon a discrimination of the type of disc used/found/discovered in the overall system – applicant's attention is drawn to figures 3-7 and the appropriate discussion with respect to these figures.

Furthermore, Satoh et al additionally provides for a user to insert disc type information into the system, so as to permit the system operate appropriately – see figures 11-12 and the discussion with respect to these figures.

Under 102 considerations, the examiner considers the claimed invention as inherently present in the above system.

Under 103 considerations, the above system provides a user to input disc discrimination information as required. However, it is not necessarily clear that such steps are "prompted".

The ability of having "prompts" displayed to a user so as to have the user interface/interact with a system is a capability well known in the present computer age – i.e., most software packages provide for appropriate prompt requests to a user through the CRT/display device when a decision point needs the user's input to proceed.

It would have been obvious to modify the base system of Satoh et al with such well-known "prompting" techniques so as to permit the user to input an appropriate response at the proper decision point.

Claim 7 is interpreted as a process and along with claim 6 is met when the above system operates.

2. Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the art as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Maurer et al.

Art Unit: 2627

The ability of having "voice actuated" commands in this environment is taught by the Maurer et al system.

It would have been obvious to modify the base system as relied upon with respect to claim 1 as stated above with the additional teaching from Maurer et al, motivation is as well recognized by users – especially in view of such environments such as automated telephone help lines.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The remaining references are cited as illustrative of prior art disc discrimination systems.
